

JOSH IS IN LOVE WITH A DANCER

Words & Music © Josh Joffen

Josh is in love with a dancer,
What is the boy going to do?
Stand up and count, he's got one left foot,
Come down to dance, he's got two
She's tall and she's slender and graceful,
And she glides through the smoke and the noise
While he waits in the wings and he watches all night
As she dances with all of the boys

She moves like the wind and she moves like the sea,
He's afraid that she'll leave him behind
Beached like a whale when the tide goes out,
Blown like a dream in his mind

Josh is in love with a dancer,
A candle in love with a flame
He's starting to melt, he's afraid he'll get burned
And he's not even sure of her name
He would like to go over and ask her
If there is room in her world for romance
And maybe what is she doing the rest of her life,
But he can't even ask her to dance

She moves like the wind and she moves like the sea,
He's afraid that she'll leave him behind
Beached like a whale when the tide goes out,
Blown like a dream in his mind

Go on, take her out on the floor,
What did you come here for but to be loose and free in the night
So maybe you're not Fred Astaire,
Baby what does she care, maybe Josh by himself is all right
Oh Josh, by yourself you're all right
He's not listening

Josh is in love with a dancer,
Headed home with his heart in a sling
She's gone on the arm of a faster man,
And ain't love a wonderful thing

She moved like the wind and she moved like the sea,
She moved off and left him behind
Beached like a whale when the tide runs out,
Blown like a dream in his mind
Beached like a whale when the tide runs out,
Blown like a dream in his mind

This isn't about me. Honest. I just didn't think it was fair to nail the person it IS about to the song, and rather than make up a name I used my own. Besides, 'Josh' doesn't appear in enough songs anyway.
