

ONLY FOR ONE NIGHT

Words & Music © 2010 Josh Joffen

He says he loves her, but she's not here now,
And your perfume's like a song
He would love to play along
Only for one night

He understands you, more than you wanted him to,
You share a spark that no one sees
But something's whispering in the breeze, and it says
'Only for one night'

One night is longer than some people ever get to slip the ties that bind
One chance beneath the stars to see who else you are,
and to leave your lives behind

But in the morning, his kiss is fading,
He's a stranger at your door
Is this the deal you waited for?
Only for one night

One chance beneath the stars to see who else you are,
and to leave your lives behind

He says he loves her, but she's not here now,
And his skin's so soft and warm
Would it really do you harm?
Only for one night

Would it really do you harm?
Only for one night
Only for one night
Only for one night
Only one night

About one night stands in general, and one night stands at folk festivals in particular. That's Gathering Time playing the role of the Greek Chorus. Many thanks, guys.
